Teleflora Careers

Teleflora.
The company of opportunity.

Progressive. Innovative. Come grow with us.

Who and what is Teleflora? Very simply, we are a privately owned floral wire service dedicated to helping the professional retail florist succeed. Among our many goals are the following:

- To provide our florist members with beautiful, innovative products and essential services—from groundbreaking educational programs to state-of-the-art technology.
- To further assure our florists' success by supporting them with the industry's largest advertising program and the best customer service.

Our work is not only exciting, but also fulfilling. It's not surprising that the average tenure of our employees is over five years, with many over 10 and even 20 years. We're proud of our company. And we're proud of the Teleflora team.

Where we started, how we grew.

Teleflora was founded in 1934 as a small family-owned business, functioning primarily as a clearinghouse which sent the orders of member florists to other members in distant locations. Today, through astute business acquisitions and greatly expanded services, Teleflora is the largest floral wire service in the world with key offices in Los Angeles, CA, Oklahoma City, OK and Paragould, AR.

A company of innovations.

The reason for our continuing growth is our deep commitment to traditional florists, expressed in numerous pioneering efforts through the years to increase their business. Foremost among them was our revolutionary "Flowers in a Gift" concept, which gave customers a high-quality keepsake gift with their flowers. Customers loved the idea and so did our florists, which is why our Teleflora Gift Bouquets are consistently ranked as the most popular in the industry. Other innovations for our florists include the industry's top educational programs, along with the most advanced shop management systems and the best web hosting program to help members claim their share of the booming Internet market.

Growing a career at Teleflora.

Teleflora is a company of opportunity for dedicated, caring employees who thrive in a dynamic, changing environment. We are committed to providing a climate with a strong emphasis on human values and relationships. Through open communication, supportive management and sensitivity to employee needs, Teleflora strives to promote team effort as well as to allow individual self-fulfillment and creative expression.

Teleflora is a company with the highest standards of moral and ethical conduct, in which all employees are treated with the same concern, respect and caring attitude that they are asked to share with every Teleflora florist and Teleflora customer.

We take pride in the proactive, groundbreaking programs available to our employees. The goal of our corporate training program is to help our employees reach their full potential as they learn to provide the highest level of service to our member florists. We create and conduct training programs for managers, supervisors, customer service, sales and technical support personnel.

We also offer exciting job opportunities in departments such as accounting, creative services, customer service, e-commerce, finance, human resources, marketing, operations, sales and technology, among others.

Our core values.

To keep the Teleflora team on a course of excellence in every interaction with our customers and with one another, we have established the following core values to work by:

- Provide superior service.
- Communicate consistently, thoughtfully and honestly.
- Treat each other with respect.
- Create a positive work environment.
- Innovate and embrace change.

Teleflora people talk about Teleflora.

E-Commerce Director, Los Angeles: "Teleflora is full of smart, very talented, interesting people. Having really great people in every department not only makes doing your job easier; it means you learn something every time you work with another group. Being surrounded by flowers and the great art that decorates the halls and offices is just icing on the cake."

Marketing Director, Los Angeles: "What I enjoy most about being a part of Teleflora's marketing team is that I am working directly to help make florists more successful. It is a good feeling when I see the results of my work put into action in shops across the country every day! Our florists appreciate what I do for them and that is satisfying."

Consumer Direct Representative, Oklahoma City:

"My favorite thing about working at Teleflora is the people I work with. In all my working adult life, I have not found the sense of family anywhere else that I feel here."

Senior Staff Accountant, Paragould: "I enjoy the ever-changing environment. It provides opportunity for growth, both personal and professional."

Dove Network Support Supervisor, Paragould:

"My favorite part about working at Teleflora is being part of such an amazing group of people. The knowledge and experience of our organization as a whole is truly astounding. We have experts in every conceivable area of our business, so really it's no wonder we're such a successful team!"
